

Annual Meeting of the Person Memory Interest Group
2001
In Coeur d'Alene, Idaho

Alan Lambert (Washington University)

Attitudes as dominant responses: Why public settings can exacerbate racial bias

Kerry Kawakami (Catholic University of Nijmegen)

What do we activate when we think of social categories? And is it possible to control processes related to these associations?

Thierry Devos (Yale University)

To be American is implicitly synonymous with being White

Rick van Baaren and Ad van Knippenberg (Catholic University of Nijmegen)

Moderators of mimicry

Brian Lickel (University of Southern California)

A cognitive appraisal model of collective shame and guilt

Anthony Greenwald (University of Washington)

Nothing so theoretical as a good method

Neal Roese (Simon Fraser University)

An anomalous asymmetry in self-serving judgments of event impact is explained by valence-dependent self-reflection

Stephen Read (University of Southern California)

Virtual personality models

Thomas Mussweiler (University of Wuerzburg)

Comparison processes in social judgments